Kon-Tiki Men Arrive In U. S., Certain Raft Trip Proved Theory

By the Associated Press
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30.—Five months after he sailed from Callao, Peru, aboard a raft, Thor Heyerdahl, 32, Norwegian ethnologist, and his Kon-Tiki expedition reached the United States yesterday, convinced he had proved his theory of early migration from the Americas to Oceania.

Mr. Heyerdahl and his five companions—four Norwegians and a Swede—and their 18-by-45-foot raft of balsa wood and bamboo were brought from Tahiti to San Francisco by the Norwegian motorship Thor No. 1.

The raft was named the Kon-Tiki after the sun god worshiped by the inhabitants of Western South America in pre-Incan days. Behind them lay 101 days of life on the raft, driven westward by wind and ocean currents. They figured their total drift at 4,300 miles. Their journey ended when they were driven onto a long reef near Rarua Island in the Tuamotu group.

Taken to Tahiti, Mr. Heyerdahl and his companions were picked up by a French government schooner which took them to Tahiti.

Mr. Heyerdahl conceived the theory that the Polynesians were a mixture of American and Peruvian Indians when he spent his honeymoon in Tahiti 10 years ago. But how did they reach the South Central Pacific? Years of study convinced Mr. Heyerdahl that they voyaged there on rafts, driven by wind and ocean currents.

He wrote a lengthy thesis setting forth his ideas. Authorities scoffed at it. Such rafts couldn't make the journey, they said.

Mr. Heyerdahl set about proving his theory. He aroused the interest of Herman Watzinger, 31, civil engineer; Knut Haugland, 30, Norwegian Army officer and radio expert; Torstein Raaby, 27, a student; Erik Hesselberg, 33, artist and navigator; all Norwegians, and Bengt Danielson, 26, Swedish sociologist who holds a fellowship at the University of Washington.

No Nails in Raft. They built the raft, lashing the logs together with rope. No nails were used. A top the raft they built a small shelter of bamboo, roofed with banana leaves.

Last April 28 they cast off from Callao. "I wanted to prove the feasibility of a raft of this type being seaworthy enough to carry human beings safely to Oceania and to prove the line of drift from South America to the South Pacific Islands," Mr. Heyerdahl said.

"I think we have proved it. Now I can publish my thesis."

Their voyage was not particularly eventful, Mr. Heyerdahl said. They survived two severe storms, but their raft rode the waves well. They saw no ships on their entire voyage.

Throughout their voyage, the expedition was in radio contact with Harold Kempel, an amateur operator in Los Angeles.

The adventurers leave today for Washington to report to the Norwegian Embassy, Miss Gerde Vald, secretary in the Embassy, came to San Francisco to meet them. Their raft will be sent to Norway for presentation to a museum.

Freedmen's
trict's share of total operating costs:

1. An item of $25,000, the estimated revenue of Freedmen's outpatient clinic for paying patients, was deducted.

2. By a more rigid interpretation, certain expenses previously classified as operating costs were regarded as not immediately consumable and so were listed as "capital outlay." The total cost for such expenditures was increased from $120,000 to $167,000, with a corresponding reduction in operating expenses, in which the District must share.

Teaching Costs Assumed. 3. In view of the fact that Freedmen's is not only a hospital, but a teaching institution linked with Howard University, those added expenses attributable to its teaching function were assumed exclusively by the Federal Government.

This made possible a flat reduction of 15 per cent in the net operating costs.

The figure was determined after a special committee surveyed the country's teaching hospitals and found their costs averaged 10 to 20 per cent higher than those of other hospitals.

This is the first year the teaching expenses have been eliminated from the District share of operating costs.

A final revision was effected after a study of the cost distribution between tuberculosis and general patients showed Freedmen's was underestimating the expense of the tuberculosis annex by failing to count time spent there by hospital employees, whose chief duty was in the main section.

The share of the tuberculosis annex was raised from 17 to 25 per cent.

One-Pound Baby Dies After Living 77 Hours
By the Associated Press
OWATONNA, Minn., Sept. 30.—Sara Jane Gray, the 1-pound baby born here 90 days prematurely Friday to Mrs. Warren Gray, wife of a Waseca athletic coach, died last night after living 77 hours.

Dr. Lyle V. Berghs, Mrs. Gray's brother, who cared for the infant, said death was due to respiratory failure after Sara Jane's tiny body had been unable to assimilate half-ounce feedings of breast milk donated by other mothers in the maternity ward.

Mrs. J. L. Gibbs, 62, Dies; Staunton Rector's Wife
Mrs. Deborah Rigdely Gibbs, 62, wife of the Rev. Dr. J. Lewis Gibbs, died yesterday at her home in Staunton, Va., after a brief illness.

Mrs. Gibbs was born in Baltimore and attended Hannah Moore Academy in Reisterstown, Md. In 1908 she married Dr. Gibbs, who was working at the Southern Railway station here studying for the ministry. Later he was graduated from the Episcopal Seminary in Alexandria, La. In 1912, they moved to Richmond, and in 1919 to Staunton, where Dr. Gibbs is rector of Emmanuel Church.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed, but burial will be in Staunton.

SAN FRANCISCO.—NORWEGIAN SCIENTIFIC PARTY BACK FROM PACIFIC—Thor Heyerdahl, Norwegian ethnologist, and members of his party stand on their balsa and bamboo raft here yesterday on arrival after five months in the Pacific. The Kon-Tiki expedition was to prove Mr. Heyerdahl's theory that early migrations from Americas to Oceania were by rafts. ## Yugoslavs Start Trial Of 2 Priests Accused Of Instigating Riot

By the Associated Press
BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Sept. 30.—Msr. Jakob Ukmak and the Rev. Stefano Cek have been placed on trial at Pazin (Pisino) in Istria on charges of instigating the August 24 Lantschie incident in which a priest was killed and Msr. Ukmak himself was injured.

The trial opened yesterday in the county courthouse. The prosecution accused the two clerics of "spreading false rumors with the aim of provoking disorders."

Father Cek also was charged specifically with having had connections with the German command during the occupation and of carrying on "auto-national work during the occupation and activity against the new social order in Yugoslavia."

Seven other defendants were charged with "endeavoring to isolate the Yugoslav Army from the people and sow the seed of mistrust between the people and the army."

Four others were accused of breaking into the parish residence at Lantschie along with "a mass of embittered and incensed people" and attacking Msr. Ukmak and the Rev. Miro Bulesich. Father Bulesich was killed, and Msr. Ukmak was injured.

The indictment also accused Father Cek of attempting to prevent peasants from surrounding villages from entering the church. The prosecution said Msr. Ukmak, by approving the priest's intentions, "encouraged him to commit a crime."

The Vatican has announced the excommunication from the Roman Catholic Church of all Catholics who took part in the attack on the two priests in the Yugoslav-occupied zone of Venezia Giulia.

Catholic officials at Trieste, reporting the incident, said Msr. Ukmak, a Vatican prelate, had been sent to Lantschie to comfort Catholic children and that the attack took place during the confirmation ceremony.

Church authorities in Trieste denied a Yugoslav charge that the priests had refused to permit former partisan fighters against the Nazis to serve as godfathers to children of the confirmation ceremony.

Four Sailors Hurt by Mine Are Expected to Recover
By the Associated Press
TRIESTE, Sept. 30.—Hospital authorities said today that four American sailors, badly hurt yesterday when the American destroyer Douglas H. Fox hit a mine 18 miles off this port, were expected to recover.

Three sailors were killed by the blast and eight others less seriously hurt. The names of the dead and injured were withheld. The destroyer was taken to drydock in Venice.

Earl L. Green of Norfolk, Va., chief pharmacist mate aboard the Fox, was described today by Navy medical officers as the hero of the accident.

Medical officers who rushed to the scene aboard the United States destroyer J. C. Owen said today that they found Green—the only medical personnel member aboard the stricken ship at the time—"was doing a wonderful job" easing the pain of the wounded, two of whom were dying.

BERLIN, Sept. 30.—Prince Ferdinand von Schoenbach-Carolath, stepson of the late Kaiser Wilhelm II of Germany, was convicted today by a British military government court of falsifying his denazification questionnaire. He was sentenced to nine months in prison.

The prosecution said the Prince, the son of the late Kaiser's sister, denied he ever was a member of the Nazi Party.

Prince Ferdinand was involved in a recent investigation of the disappearance of his mother's royal jewels.

the extra session idea, he repeated his statement of last week that one would be called if necessary. He would not make a guess as to a possible date.

Tomorrow the White House tackles another angle, when the newly organized Citizens' Food Committee, headed by Charles Luckman, meets for the first time to map a program for the national conservation program asked by Mr. Truman to bolster European supplies and halt the price advance. Mr. Luckman himself was injured in Congress.

The President told the congressional leaders at yesterday's meeting there is only enough money on hand to keep Western Europe, especially Italy, France and Austria, going on a "starvation basis" of food and fuel until some time in December. There is no way to make additional funds available, he said, without action by Congress.

He said it will take another $500,000,000 to see the area through next March. Something must be done, he told his news conference. If France and Italy are to "survive this winter as free and independent nations."

Speed Asked on Stopgap Aid.
The Chief Executive said the long-range Marshall plan under which 16 European nations have asked for some $22,400,000,000 of aid can wait until the regular session of Congress in January.

Senator Lucas, Democrat, of Illinois, acting Democratic Senate leader, told reporters that Congress has been "very generous in the bipartisan approach to problems of this kind and I can see no reason why, when all the facts are in, Congress would not support this stopgap plan."

Unless this is done, Senator Lucas said, there is a "wonderful chance" that Italy will fall to Communists within a month.

Chairman Bridges of the Senate Appropriations group expressed the opinion that "generally speaking this country has got to meet realistically the threat of Russian communism and its spread into Western Europe."

In addition to the special fund proposed by the President, Senator Bridges added, the Army will need $450,000,000 to $600,000,000 additional for occupied areas during the fiscal year which ends next July 1.

Senator Connally of Texas, ranking Democrat on the Foreign Relations Committee, said the committee should finish their work by December 1 so that the President could call the special session then if he decides an early return of Congress would solve the problem.

House Majority Leader Halleck said he favored calling in the committee and adding a hope that the "most information possible" will be given to the American people.

Pepper Voices Dissent.
A dissenting voice against the plan came from Senator Pepper, Democrat, of Florida, disputing claims that the issue is European aid or communism. He said, "That is an utterly false basis on which to put this program."

Senator Pepper said there are many Communist workers in France and Italy and "if they get the idea that this is not a plan to help them but a war between the United States and Russia, they may not want to help the United States fight that war."

Senator Pepper argued that instead of considering stopgap aid for Europe, Congress should restore price controls and rationing of essential foods.

"The economy at home must be saved before we can save Europe," he declared. "This is the first condition for success of the Marshall plan."

day that the Marshall aid-Europe plan is "only a temporary measure and will not halt the westward march of Soviet Russia."

Most people in the Balkans, he said, believe the Marshall Plan was devised to curb the spread of Communism in Western Europe, but he voiced the conviction that the Soviet Union had extended its influence too far for the plan to succeed.

"The Russians have cut the body of Europe in half," said the 40-year-old diplomat in an interview. "The Marshall Plan is equal to a blood transfusion, but it is running right back out of the continent's gaping wound."

Magnifying Glass Held Cause of $10,000 Fire

By the Associated Press
PELHAM MANOR, N. Y., Sept. 30.—The magnifying glass which John Lydgate, 11, uses to examine his coin collection was blamed by Fire Chief Arthur Fawcett for a $10,000 fire yesterday at the home of William A. Lydgate, Gallup Pool editor.

Chief Fawcett said the glass fell from a third-floor window, landing in a position to focus the sun's rays on dry cedar shingles, which caught fire.
